

Master of Environmental Design (Planning) Information Session

The Master of Environmental Design (Planning) degree, MEDES (Planning), is a course-based degree that combines a common core curriculum with the opportunity to specialize in one of three streams:

- Regional and Environmental Planning
- City and Community Planning
- Urban Design and Development

The MEDES (Planning) program is intended for those wishing to pursue a professional career in planning. Graduates go on to assume professional planning roles in urban and rural municipalities, government agencies and private consultancies.

Applications for the Fall 2012 class of the MEDES (Planning) program will be accepted until February 1, 2012.
